A TOUNGER AND STRONGER MAN, HE THINKS

SHOULD TAKE UP THE WORK OF SEARCH-ING FOR THE NORTH POLE, WHICH, HE BELIEVES, WILL FINALLY

BE REACHED. Portland, Me., Oct. 1.-Lieutenant R. E. Peary arrived here this morning and proceeded at once to his mother's home, in Cape Elizabeth, where he now He spent the forenoon in conversation with his mother. He is looking well and is in excellent

He says he is done with Arctic explorations. "I shall never see the North Pole," said he, "unless some one brings it here. I am done with it. In my judgment, such work requires a far younger man than I. The leader of such a party should be able not only to do as much as any one else, but more than any other man. He should be under thirty rather than over forty. I am too old to go on snowshoes twenty-five to thirty miles a day and to carry a heavy load during most of the time For that work one should be a trained man, a thor ough athlete, and that I am not." "Will the pole ever be reached?" was asked. "I believe that it will, and I think the work will be accomplished in a comparatively short time. I plied that he had not given the balloon theory any special thought.

He said his party suffered much on the last trip. "But," he added, "it was because we were unable to keep sufficient steam in the human boilers, in other words, we could not carry with us food enough to enable us to sustain our strength.

"There are three things that operate against those who try to reach the pole—the ice that is in the way of the vessels, the darkness during so many months and the extreme difficulty in carrying about enough provisions in condensed form. These are the difficulties that some one must overcome if the work is to be accomplished.

to be accomplished. "The larger the party, the greater the difficulty. It may be possible to find four men able to withstand the cold and the exposure, but in a large party at least one man would be sure to give out, and the strength of a chain is to be judged by its weakest, and not its strongest link. A party of explorers might fall through the weakness of a single man." Lieutenant Peary said that his time for the next few days would be fully occupied. All his specimens, etc., as well as all his papers, have been sent to New-York.

to-day. The explorer will probably remain here for several days. He will make his headquarters while in the city at the rooms of the American Geographical Society, at No. II West Twenty-ninthst, and will board at the Everett House. HANSON AND PROFESSOR DYCHE BACK. THE PROFESSOR TELLS THE STORY OF THE RE LIEF EXPEDITION.

L. Dyche, of the Peary relief exp dition, and Matthew Hanson, Lieutenant Peary's faithful colored servant, who shared in the explorer's arctic trials, arrived in this city yesterday on the steamer Sylvia from Hallfax. The Sylvia was Debitsch, Mrs. Peary's brother, and a member of the expedition, was in waiting there for her arrival Lieutenant Peary and Mrs. Peary are expected here to-day from Portland, and upon their arrival in the city they will go to the Hotel Bartholdi, other members of the expedition, including Dr. Walsh, of Washington, Professor Salsbury, of the Chicago University, Hugh Lee, of Meriden, Conn. and Mr. Le Boutellier, of the Philadelphia graphical Society, came on by rail from Hallfax, and are now at their homes.

The collection brought back on the Sylvia by Pro fessor Dyche consisted of two meteorites, on weighing four tons, and the other one ton; five Esquimau dogs, which will be presented to the Central Park "Zoo," and between 2,000 and 4,000 different specimens of birds and eggs, walrus and seal skins, making up what Professor Dyche be from Greenland. In the relief expedition Professor Dyche represented the Kansas State University and the Amer. can Museum of Natural History, in behalf of Morris K. Jesup, whose munificence largely abied in fitting out the expedition to find the adventurous lieuenant. He was not inclined to talk much yester accounts of which, he said, had been published, but told at length of the relief expedition The professor left Gloucester on the fishing vessel Golden Hope on May 16, and arrived at Holsteinberg, twelve miles north of the arctic circle, June 9, where there were from eight to ten feet o ce on the inland waters and about four feet in the harbor. He remained there until June 26, when the Kite arrived with the other members of the relief expedition, and spent the time collecting birds, eggs. seals and other specimens. He then joined the Kite way of Godhaven, an Esquimau settlement, and Walgot Straits, to Jacob's Haven. On the way they picked up a Danish ship which had been caught in the ice. On July 25 the expedition reached Alenik erdiuk, where fossil beds and coal veins were found. On July 25 the party entered Melville Bay, which is dangerous because of the moving ice fields, and reached Herbert Island in safety. A Polar bear and a lot of ducks were killed along the route. At Herbert Island, the first news of Peary was obtained from some native hunters, who said he had returned and been at his camp "many sleeps."

An unsuccessful attempt was made to reach his camp over the bee by means of sledges and dogs. The Kite then broke her way into McCormis Bay and the party succeeded in reaching Redeliff House, Lieutenant Peary's old camp. Professor Saisbury and crossed the mountains, reaching Peary at Anniversary Lodge on August 2, and returning with the explorer and his companions, Lee and Hanson, two days later. Several days were then spent in walrus hunting, and a number of these huge animals were killed.

The loe bekan to come down and the expedition started south. The whole party returned to Karnah, hunding, and a number of these huge animals were killed.

The lee began to come down and the expedition started south. The whole party returned to Karnah, and thence went to Granville Hay. Here six built walruses were killed, which were of an average weight of from three to four tons each, the skins alone weighing from 700 to 300 pounds. On August 20 Ironstone Mountain was reached, and here a week's stay was made and the two big meteorites were obtained. They then started on the return journey. It was hard work fighting the lee getting back, and once the party was held in the central park so long that an inventory of the provisions was taken. They finally got out and safely into St. John's.

Hanson could add but little to what has already been told in the dispatches from Hallfax concerning the original expedition. He said that their suffering had been terrible, and they were extremely thankful when the Kite party came to their rescue.

DRIVING TO TUXEDO. A party comprising Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and her daughter, Miss Consuelo, and the Duke of Mariborough, Colonel and Mrs. William Jay and Oliver H. P. Belmont yesterday started to drive by coach to Tuxedo. They arrived at Yonkers about moon, and dined at the Getty House. Their arrival created something of a stir in the city, and a large number of persons witnessed their departure. The party left Yonkers at 2 o'clock, and three hours later reached Sing Sing, where they femalised over night at the American House, to start early this morning for West Point.

A report was printed yesterday to the effect A report was printed yesterday to the effect that the marriage of the Duke of Mariborough and Miss Consuele Vanderbilt would take place November 14 and that Bishop Potter would officiate. When the Duke was asked yesterday if there was any truth in this he said that absolutely no details had been decided. He adhered to the statement that the welding would take place some time before Christmas, but he did not know when, He was asked if his stepmother. Lady William Beresford, saked if his stepmother. The opening performance of the season at the lrving Place Theatre was given last night before an audience that crowled the house. The play was Heinrich Laube's "Graf Essex." The story is concerned chiefly with political intrigue, which is not especially inspiring after the lapse of nearly three hundred years. It has also the character of Queen Elizabeth, with its complexity of nature dueen Elizabeth, with its complexity of nature and motives. It is not necessary to say as a matter of information that Elizabeth is one of the most remarkable personages in English or any other history. She is frequently seen on the stage, having been put into numerous plays, such, for example, as "Twixt Axe and Crown," Mary Stuart and "Amy Robsart," and when the part is adequately played it always proves of interest, no matter who the central figure of the play may be. This proved to be the case last night. Emma Habelmann-Teller played the Queen, with regard for both historic correctness and dramatic effect. Her imperiousness, her jealously of power and her jealously in love were manifested with much force and skill, in love were manifested with much force and skill, the part of the Earl of Essex was played by Bruno Geidner; that of the Countess of Rutland by Miss Lucie Freisinger, Lord Nottingham by Carl Sick, and Lady Nottingham by Miss Bertha Kuhn. ENGLAND'S ULTIMATUM TO CHINA.

THE UNITED STATES SHOULD HAVE ACTED From The New-York World.

The British Government has brought China to terms. It has compelled the Imperial Government to degrade the viceroy who was responsible for the missionary massacres, and to decree that he shall never again hold any office. The British Government did this by showing fourteen warships ready for action, and then making its demands with manifest intention to enforce them. This will cover our grievance, of course. Our citizens will hereafter be safe under protection of the British flag. But why should we not have done this thing ourselves? Why should this great Nation of 65,00,000 people, and with resources immeasurably greater than those of any Euronean nation, depend upon Great Britain to enforce its treaty rights and protect its citizens? Why should we forever play tail to Britain's kife? Why should we forever play tail to Britain's kife? Why thould we forever play tail to Britain's kife? Why and in a state of the security of our citizens? It is rather a humiliating bit of history.

THIS COUNTRY AGAIN PLAYING "SECOND FIDDLE."

THE VICEROY'S DEGRADATION AN ENTREME STEP.

From The Providence Journa.

The Emperor and his advisers would rather do a most anything eize than punish one of the mandarin class for missleeds of this character, and if a foreign Power is bound to accomplish such an end there is just one way to do it. That is the way that Great British has happily taken. The Chinese universand the meaning of a well-armed fleet in the Yang-tse-Kiang, and they are ready to agree to almost anything if by this means they can persuate the hate! GREAT BRITAIN'S ULTIMATE AIM

From The Baltimore American.

But will the British leave? This is, at least, doubtful. The massacre of the missionaries was used by the British Government, so it has been rumored, as a basis of movements in China that will counteract the growing influence of Russia. ERITISH PRESTIGE IN CHINA ENHANCED.

From The Commercial Advertiser.

From The Commercial Advertiser.

England has done in China exactly what the United States should have done, and what it would have done if Minister Irenby or the President had been induenced by the appeals of missionaries and by public sentiment. Mr. Denby, pouting because the missionaries objected to the person he selected to serve on the investigation commission, washed his hands of the whole business. England issued her ultimatum, threatening immediate hossilities unless the viceroy in whose dominion the outrages were perpetrated should be disgraced, and China is reported to have succumbed. This gives to England a prestige in China that will insure her missionaries against further assassination and molectation. The fanatics will feel that they can assault American missionaries with impunity.

THE COUNTRY UNSAFE FOR MISSIONARIES

From The Utica Herald.

A naval movement by Great Britain has forced China to punish the viceroy of the province in which the massacre of missionates occurred. This may prove a salutary example for the time being, but it is no guarantee that missionaries will be safe hereafter in all parts of China. At any rate, it is cartain that the condition of the Empire Just now is too chaotic to permit of the safe re-exhabitshing of missionary stations in remote places. OBITUARY.

EX-JUSTICE SOLON B. SMITH. Ex-Police Justice Solon B. Smith died yesterday

at No. 232 East Fiftleth-st., the home of his father. For many years Mr. Smith had not been a well For a long time he had been a victim of Other complications had come later, and for some time an announcement of his death would not have been a surprise to his friends. "Sol" Smith, as he was generally known, was born in this city in the old XXth District forty-three years ago. Before he could vote he was active in politics as a Republican, and when he reached his najority he was already influential in political matters in his district. In 1873, when scarcely twentyyears old, he was elected to the Assembly, and was soon known as one of Chester A. Arthur's st trusted and devoted lieutenants. In 1879 Mayor Edward Cooper appointed him a Police Justice, and at the end of his term of ten years Mayor Grant reappointed him for a shorter term, which expired in January, 1883. Mayor Gliroy made no appoint ment of his successor until after the election of 1894, and Justice Smith served until Mayor Gilroy commissioned Joseph M. Deuel, another Republican,

During his long service as Police Justice Mr. Smith became one of the best-known men in the Although he was not a member of the bar, few lawyers who appeared before him were better posted in the criminal law. For a long period either Justice Smith or Justice Kilbreth, now Collector of the Port, presided over the Court of Special Ses-

the Port, presided over the Court of Special Sessions.

Justice Smith was a marvel of quickness and accuracy in his decisions. He was a keen student of human nature, and had a remarkable memory. An instance of his wonderful ability to retain in his memory the very wording of the criminal statutes was recalled yesterday. One day when he was presiding in Special Sessions a lawyer engaged in a case before him quoted a section of the Fenal Code. The lawyer had a copy of the code in his hand at the time and read from it. But he misquoted two or three words in the long section of the law he was reading. It seemed to have been done intentionally. Whether it was or not, Justice Smith, when the lawyer had finished, quietly remarked. "I think you are mistaken," and then quoted the whole section, word for word, much to the astonishment of the lawyer and the admiration of his collections it was a rather obscure bit of the code, and one with which lawyers were not familiar.

Mr. Smith was unmarried.

The funeral will be held at the home of his father this evening at 8 o clock.

The death of William Ottmann, of William Ottmann & Co., the wholesale and retail butchers and exporters, of Fulton Market, which was noticed in The Tribune of yesterday, deprived the metropolis of a public-spirited and charitable citizen. The exensive stand of the firm has been in its possession and that of its predecessors over forty-seven years.
It was formerly occupied by Montgomery & Anderson, in whose employ was Philip Ottmann, an uncle of William Ottmann. Mr. Montgomery retired forty-four years ago, and the firm became Anderson & Ottmann, the junior partner being the uncle of William Ottmann. Philip Ottmann, on returning from a visit to Meisenheim, Germany, thirty-six years ago, brought with him his nephew, William Ottmann, who went to work for the firm. Mr Anderson retiring soon afterward. Philip Ottmann continued the business alone, but admitted William Ottmann to partnership twenty-nine years ago. When Philip Ottmann died, nineteen years ago, William Ottmann, with his brothers, Charles and Louis, as partners, formed the firm of Ottmann & Co., which about five years ago became an incorporated company, by which the pres-came an incorporated company, by which the pres-ent business will be continued without change. William Otimann was a director of the Eastmans Company, the Union Square, Pisza and Germania banks, and of the Stuyvesant Fire Insurance Com-pany. He was also a trustee of the Citizens Sav-ings Bank, and president of the J. Otimann Litho-graphing Company. He was a Free Mason, and a member of the German Liederkranz and the Ful-tion Club. As a patron of St. John's Guild, the German Hospital and many other charitable instiin an unostentatious manner. The Sisters of Charity who frequently called upon him at his office in Fulton Market never went away empty-handed, and several cripples who were unable to gain a livelihood unaided received from him generous stipends, for which they called at his office at regular intervals.

Mr. Ottmann had suffered from a complication of nervous disorders for about two years, but continued to visit his office daily until September 20, when he was compelled to return to his home, at No. 32 Irving Place, where he died on Sunday. His wife, two daughters and a son survive him. His city, Arrangements for the funeral, which will take place on Saturday, have not yet been completed.

A. BISHOP BALDWIN.

A. Bishop Baldwin, one of the oldest residents of South Orange, and prominently known in financial, commercial and political circles for many years, From The Hartford Post.

The determined action of Great Britain is said to be "approved by the Washington Administration." So the United States is playing second fiddle again. Why should this action of a foreign Power, with which our Chinese policy has nothing whatever to do, he "approved" by us? Is it not true that the United States ought to initiate its own policy toward foreign offenders, wheth r at Ku-Cheng or elsewhere." The action of Great Britain is entitled to all praise. When will the American people be permitted to praise the foreign policy of their own powerful Nation?

ecommercial and political circles for many years, died on Sunday night at Moorestown, N. J. where he had been visiting for some time, from a disease of the brain. Born in the old Baidwin homestead, at South Orange-ave, and Centre-st. in June, 1823. Mr. Raidwin was educated in the public schools of South Orange, Later he went to Mobile, Ala, where he engaged in the clothing business. At the breaking out of the war he enlisted and was appointed paymaster in the Union Army. When the policy of their own powerful Nation? breaking out of the war he enlisted and was ap-pointed paymaster in the Union Army. When the war closed, Mr. Baldwin came North and began the banking business. He filled several responsi-ble places in leading institutions, and at one time When the Newark and South Orange Street Rall-way Company went into a receiver's hands Mr. Haidwin was selected as receiver. After a time he soid it to John Radel. In politics Mr. Haidwin was a Democrat of the old school. He took a lively interest in matters political, and was long a member of the Essex County Road Board. He served for many years on the Board of Fresholders and was director of the Board. Forty-live years ago he married Miss Kate B. Mann, of Somerville, who survives him, with three children, Frederick B. Baldwin, Miss Mary Werts Baldwin and Mrs. Lamont Durbrow.

Eli Whitney Blake was born in New-Haven on April 20, 1856, his father being the well-known in-ventor of the same name. He was graduated at Yale in 1857, after which he spent a year at the Sheffield Scientific School and several years in Europe, where he studied chemistry and physics in Europe, where he studied chemistry and physics in the universities of Heideiberg, Marburg and Berlin. Returning to this country, he was made professor of chemistry and physics in the University of Vermont, which institution conferred the degree of A. M. upon him in 186. From 1883 to 130 he was professor of physics and mechanic arts at Cornell University. During a portion of the same time he was acting professor of physics at Columbia College, and from 180 until last June he filled the chair of physics at Brown. He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of other scientific bodies to whose proceedings he frequently contributed valuable papers. On March 8, 1860, he married Helen Mary Rood, of New-Haven, who survives him, together with one son, Ell Whitney Blake, until recently in charge of the Associated Charities in Providence, and one daughter, Alida, now Mrs. Barciny Hazard.

FOX HUNTING HELD TO BE LEGAL.

QUEENS COUNTY FARMERS FAIL IN THEIR EF-

FORT TO STOP IT. The Queens County Board of Supervisors held a special meeting in Long Island City yesterday to decide whether there should be fox hunting on Long Island this year. The members of the Meadowbrook Club wanted the present prohibitory law repealed so as to hunt foxes and started a The farmers of the county, and especially those in the vicinity of the Meadowbrook clubhouse, were opposed to the law being repealed and assembled in large numbers at the meeting of the supervisors yesterday. The farmers claimed that in many instances the foxes liberated were no captured or killed and in consequence they bred at fast that they became a nuisance. Each side handed in long petitions. After a discussion Lawyer Fran-cis H. Var Vechten, the counsel of the supervisors, settled the matter by saying that the Legislature had taken the affair out of the hands of the super-visors by passing a law repealing the local act. Consequently fox hunting can be enjoyed in Queens County.

PARTICULAR ABOUT HIS BURIAL.

MR. M'CONNELL'S ELABORATE DIRECTIONS ABOUT HIS TOMB AND OTHER PLACES OF SEPULTURE.

The will of Walter F. McConnell, distributing about $55,000, was filed with the Surrogate yesterday. Mr. McConnell left no descendants, and his elaborate will is largely filled by bequests of money and personal property to various relatives. To George McConnell, a brother, and to Robert G. Mc Connell, George B. McConnell and Walter G. Mc-Connell, nephews, sums of $1,000 are given, and Helen W. McConnell, a niece, receives a like The testator gives various articles of amount. china and silver to relatives and friends. To Isa bella F. Ford he gives a blue china mug, a saitcellar, a mother-of-pearl fan, and other articles formerly belonging to his wife. To his brother he gives a piece of Dresden ware, known as "The Dice Players," and several paintings on ivory. Books and other articles are given to nephews, and to a niece "the sliver bodkin that belonged to my great-grandmother, Sarah Bancroft, and the cap that my great-grandfather, Abel Bancroft, wore when he was christened." A portrait is given to St. quest of $1.20 is made to the Protestant Episcopal Church in New-Hampshire to pay the mortgage upon lots belonging to the church. All the residue of the estate is given to the testator's friend Charles M. Quiglie, who is made executor.

Several pages of Mr. McConnell's will are taken up with directions as to the care of burial plots and ombs belonging to him. He gives to the city of Hoston, or the persons having charge of Mount Hope Cemetery, in that city, the sum of $500 for the care of a burial plot belonging to him, and provides that only his brother, brother-in-law, niece vides that only his brother, brother-in-law, niece and executor shall be buried there. To the trustees of Sleepy Hollow Rural Cemetery, at Tarrytown, he gives $1,500 for the repair of a tomb and the maintenance of the burial plot in good condition. He directs his executor to have his body placed with the feet toward the east, in his tomb in the catacomb at Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, where his wife's body is. He provides that the tomb shall then be "sealed with brick masonry behind a marble tablet," and that the tablet shall be inscribed with his name, "Walter McConneil," and with the date of his birth. He even tells what style of letters shall be used on the inscription, and directs that his body shall never be removed if buried as directed. If his body is buried elsewhere, he provides that the place of his burial shall be mentioned on the tomb, or the words "lost at sea" used. If such an occurrence should be the cause of his death. These provisions, he says, are in compliance with his wife's wishes.

The will of Lucy S. Fleet, the wife of Samuel E. W. Fleet, was offered for probate yesterday at the Surrogate's office. She bequeaths $5,000 and articles of jewelry to her niece, Lucy C. Brockenbrough, to whom, also, she devises a house at Warsaw, Va. Another niece, Mrs. F. H. Goodwyn, receives the income of a trust fund of $5,000 and of a farm of Li00 acres and several other tracts of land. To Littleton Brockenbrough is given $1,000, and to John L. Brockenbrough the same amount. Other bequests are made to other relatives. All the residue of the estate is left to the husband of the testator.

Surrogate Arnold yesterday appointed the Ameriean Consul-General at Paris a commissioner to take testimony in a suit brought by Frank D. test the validity of the will of Zefa Heyward, the grandson of Zefa Heyward, alleges that the Countess exercised undue influence over her mother when the latter was making her will, and that she thus succeeded in becoming sole legatee to the thus succeeded in becoming sole legatee to the estate, estimated at $25,000. Morris and Marius Delprat filed objections yesterday in the Surrogate's office to the probate of the will of their mother. Mary Frances Morris Delprat, who died in Paris. France, on January 14. The testator left personal property valued at $16,000, and also real estate, the value of which is not given. By the terms of the will, which is dated January 16, she leaves $500 each to her sons, Marius and Morris. The residue of the estate is left to her husband, James L. Delprat, and on his death to their two sons. The sons contest the will on the ground that their mother was of unsound mind and unduly influenced by their father.

In the Surrogate's Court yesterday Maurice Meyer, office and the administrator in a will case for so creditors and all the heirs were in actual need of the amount, which has now lain in the City Cham-berlain's office for three years. The estate is that of Angela DeB. Coiro, a widow, who died in 1836, leaving seven infant children and an estate consisting of two houses, on which foreclosure pro-ceedings were instituted immediately after the death of the testator. Carlo La Maida, a banker, was made testamentary guardian and administrator of the estate.

Surrogate Arnold reserved decision on a motion to compel the administrator to file objections at once to the report of a refere.
